

PET-journey 2017 to London

My alarm clock rang at 03.30 a.m. on Friday, but fortunately I wasn't that tired, because I was so thrilled and eager to make this trip. My father and I met the others on time at the airport.

I was very excited and because of that I felt a bit travelsick, but the feeling passed and luckily I reached London without throw up myself. We took the underground from the airport to our hotel. I shared a room with 4 other girls. First I felt a little bit uneasy with this situation, because I didn't know them that well. But in the end, we understood each other so well and had a lot of fun together.

On Friday, the first day in London, we went to Oxford street and walked around. London is such a beautiful city with its old buildings and the people there are really kind and polite.

But after a few hours I was so tired. It was exhausting to keep my eyes open and I almost fall asleep in the underground. The others felt the same way, so we decided to went back to the hotel and make a nap in our rooms. After we bought on our own something to eat and had our dinner, we went at already 09.00 p.m. to bed. We were so tired from the first, exhausting, but also very funny day.

Of course, I had to go shopping. We did it on Saturday. I was very happy with the fact, that we could visit London in groups of three people. It allowed us to go, where ever we fancied. Afterwards we agreed to go to the Hyde Park and spend there a very relaxed and cheerful afternoon, with unhealthy food and lots of squirrels. The weather wasn't rainy, as I expected. It was warm and the sun was shining.

Later in the evening we met the others at the hotel and decided to go to the promenade to visit the famous sights of London, like the Tower Bridge and the Big Ben. Everything was illuminated and the view was fantastic. We had a nice evening together.

I was surprised how fast the weekend went by when I woke up on Sunday, our last day in London. We used the day to go to Camden Market one more time and enjoyed the atmosphere in this city.

I was very sad when we reached Germany in the night from Sunday to Monday, because the time in London was way too short. But I'm so glad that I did this amazing experience with all these cheerful people. If I will have the opportunity one more time, I would definitely do it again. And I highly recommend this trip to everyone!
